SUBJECT: Evaluation of [REDACTED] and M/AG Support [REDACTED]

25X1A2g

I. Value of [REDACTED] Reports - General

25X1A2g [REDACTED] reports are currently of more importance for East Germany and Poland than for other bloc countries in providing information of interest to M/AG.

25X1A2g However, [REDACTED] reports do provide information on CEMA operations and policy of interest to all Soviet bloc countries not obtainable by overt collection. In addition, overall studies on agricultural production and commodity production estimates for the Bloc done by foreign governments have been received. Two useful reports of this type were: [REDACTED] The 1956 Grain Harvest in Soviet Bloc; and [REDACTED] Agricultural Production and Food Supply in the Soviet Bloc.

III. East Germany

Reports are of particular importance in providing agricultural economic information on East Germany. In general these reports are very useful and provide an excellent check on the validity of published official data. By far the best single report was [REDACTED] "Status of Agriculture and Proposed Measures for the Increase of Agr. Production". This report was really a critical appraisal of agriculture in East Germany prepared for use by the Soviet advisor to the East German Ministry of Agriculture. This 37 page report clearly, concisely, and we believe accurately, analyzes the problems in the agricultural economy and points out the fiction upon which socialist planning is based. The report, made available to other ORR divisions and ONE has been highly praised by many consumers. Several additional series [REDACTED] reports too numerous to cite here merit praise. These reports generally were in direct response to existing requirements and frequently originated from a defector, who had previously been an active agent.

DRAFTIV. Poland:

reports received for Poland fell into two basic source categories.

which give local agricultural information; and deal with changes in economic and political policies affecting agriculture.

25X1A2g

25X1A2g

25X1A2g

25X1A2g

25X1A2g has been useful in providing information on many facets of agriculture, e.g., Machine Tractor Station operations, Compulsory delivery quotas and State Farms. Example: Facilities for Training

25X1A2g

Personnel in the Management of Producers' Cooperatives and Government

Agricultural Machine Stations. has been very important for providing behind the scenes discussion and giving the reasons for agricultural policy changes during the past 1½ years. Examples are:

25X1A2g

Report by Jedrychowski on the Polish Internal Economic Situation as of November 1956; and Speech of Wladyslaw Gomulka to the Meeting of the Voivodship Committee First Secretaries on 23 November 1956.

25X1A2g

V. Rumania:

reports have provided very limited coverage of the agricultural sector.

For food supply and agricultural industry data two reports have recently provided M/AG with useful information. These were: Light

25X1A2g

Industry Production Program for 1958; and Current Economic

25X1A2g

Situation in Rumania.

VI. Albania and Bulgaria - Of no value.

VII. Hungary

reports account for only a small part of the usable information which 25X1A2g comes to M/AG. Even this modest importance has declined during the past two years because of the large increase in the release of information by the Hungarian government. reports contribute more to the coverage of foreign 25X1A2g trade than to any other subject category, and this particular reporting represents practically the only example of significant clandestine support.

VIII. Czechoslovakia

Good information, although dated, has been available on the Food Industry for Czechoslovakia.

IX. USSR

Upswings analyses of the Soviet agricultural situation are always of interest and sometimes helpful. The 1956 Grain Harvest in 25X1A2g the Eastern Bloc - Part I, the Soviet Union, April 1957.

X. Communist China

Very little useful information, other than some reports on agricultural prices, is obtained from reports. 25X1A2g
